China's Economy Slows as Xi Plans for Historic Third Term

As China's leaders gather for a crucial party congress, the country is expected on Tuesday to announce some of its weakest quarterly growth figures since 2020, its economy hobbled by COVID restrictions and a real estate crisis. The figures for the third quarter, along with a salvo of other economic indicators, will be unveiled in the middle of the week-long political meeting that is expected to grant President Xi Jinping a historic third term in charge. A group of experts interviewed by AFP said they expected an average GDP increase of 2.5 percent on last year's July-September quarter. In the previous quarter, growth in the world's second largest economy collapsed to only 0.4 percent compared to the previous year, the worst performance since 2020. The country posted 4.8 percent growth in the first quarter of 2022.

Many economists think China will struggle to attain its growth target this year of around 5.5 percent, and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) has lowered its GDP growth forecast to 3.2 percent for 2022 and 4.4 percent for 2023. AFP's panel of experts predicted average growth of three percent in 2022, a long way off the 8.1 percent seen in 2021. That would be China's weakest growth rate in four decades, excluding 2020 when the global economy was hammered by the emergence of the coronavirus. "The big policy challenge is accepting that the economy has reached a state of maturity that means growth numbers are likely permanently reset to the zero to 4.5 percent range for the coming decade," Clifford Bennett, chief economist at ACY Securities, told AFP.

Another factor that has had an enormous impact is Beijing's zero-COVID policy. China is the last of the world's major economies to continue to follow the strategy, which imposes tight travel restrictions, mass PCR testing and obligatory quarantines. It also involves sudden and strict lockdowns -- including of businesses and factories -- which has disrupted production and weighed heavily on household consumption. But despite the impact on the economy, "there is no clear sign of a significant easing of the zero-COVID strategy", Nomura's Ting Lu said, noting that so far the opposite had happened.

The remains of a Nazi patrol boat that was sunk by British bombs and gunfire during World War II is leaking toxic waste, including explosives and heavy metals, into its final resting place on the floor of the North Sea, reports a new study. The hazardous materials from the shipwreck have influenced the surrounding ecosystem, shedding light on the pollution that sunken vessels can introduce to undersea environments. Eighty years ago, a Nazi convoy of battleships and support vessels attempted to race up the English Channel as part of a naval operation called Operation Cerberus, also known as the Channel Dash. On February 12, 1942, the Royal Air Force attacked the fleet off the coast of Belgium, sinking the Nazi patrol boat V-1302 John Mahn, a converted trawler that was part of the operation's escort, and killing a dozen crew members. John Mahn now lies mostly intact under about 115 feet under the ocean surface, and it still contains unexploded depth charges and many hazardous contaminants. To better understand its impact on the seafloor, scientists led by Josefiën Van Landuyt, a PhD student studying marine ecology at Ghent University, sampled sediments around the shipwreck, along with parts of its steel hull.

The team discovered that the toxic pollutants such as nickel, copper, arsenic, and petrochemicals have seeped from the wreck into the adjacent habitats, which has affected the microbiology on the seafloor, according to a study published on Tuesday in Frontiers of Marine Science. The study is part of the North Sea Wrecks project, a research effort focused on the thousands of ship and aircraft wrecks that litter the floor of this sea. "The wreck we studied was selected as a representative case study for the Belgian North Sea because of the type of ship, the suspected load in terms of fuel and munition, the time since it was sunk, local hydrology and how accessible it was to divers,” Van Landuyt said in an email to Motherboard. “It is one of twenty wrecks which were sampled for a larger international project called ‘North Sea Wrecks’ that are found all over different parts of the North Sea (Belgium, Norway, Germany, Denmark, The Netherlands).”

The team’s analysis revealed that the area around the ship’s coal bunker was particularly contaminated by toxic metals, and that harmful chemicals called polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs) were strewn near the wreck. These deposits actually changed the ecology of the region by supporting microbes, such as Rhodobacteraceae and Chromatiaceae, that degrade PAHs. Microbes from the Desulfobulbia family, which is fueled by compounds that contain sulfur, were in the hull samples. “In our study, levels of these compounds were below levels dangerous to us or the surrounding wildlife,” Van Landuyt said. “Higher concentrations of these compounds could be toxic or cause developmental issues in marine wildlife.”

6. According to paragraph 2, what is the subject of the North Sea Wrecks project?
 - A. Ship and aircraft wrecks that drowned in the deep sea
 - B. Debris that polluted the sea, specifically the deep sea

Because of high birth rates and improving life expectancy, Victorian families were generally large. The growth of residential domestic service, even low down the social scale, and the prevalence of lodgers, especially in towns, meant that many households were further swollen in size and complex in formation. Although households consisting of more than two generations or containing more than one husband/wife partnership had never been common in Britain, there was a tendency, especially in textile districts, for grandparents to live in households containing young children, particularly where mothers were working outside the home.

Most households necessarily drew income from a number of sources, with many women and juveniles adding to wage earning even if their employment was usually more intermittent and low-paid than that of adult males. Although the male breadwinner wage was increasingly regarded as the ideal and even the norm, in practice many households were dependent upon female earnings, especially those households run by widows.

As the mid-Victorian boom got underway the demand for female and juvenile labour expanded, particularly where new technologies or patterns of work were resented by skilled men. Cheap female and immigrant labour was often used to undercut male workers. Urbanisation created manifold opportunities for female employment despite the regulation of hours and conditions of work for women and juveniles in certain sectors, and the coming of compulsory education after 1871. Thus most women in Victorian society, in the two thirds of the population below the upper and middle classes, worked for wages. But in what occupations and how much?

One of the greatest problems facing the historian of women's work is the absence of reliable information. The census enumerators' books are the most obvious source, especially for the period after 1841 when occupations were included; but in practice such information is vastly more accurate for men than for women for several reasons. Firstly, contradictory and inconsistent instructions were given as to how to classify women's work, particularly where this involved home-working or consisted of helping in a family-run business (such work was sometimes deliberately excluded from the record). Furthermore, women's work was often part-time, casual, and not regarded as important enough to declare.

Sometimes it was illegal (as with prostitution) or performed in unregulated sweatshops (a further reason for failure to record). Women may have also preferred to keep their income-earning a secret from their husband. An occupational designation, for whatever reason, meant something very different for men than for women. With the emphasis primarily upon their role as wives and mothers, women workers did not usually see their occupation as a centrally defining characteristic of their lives, and therefore frequently failed to declare it.

Business records can be used to supplement the census and to give an indication of the gender-specific nature of employment and wage earning in certain firms and regions. But the survival of wage books is generally poor and biased in favour of larger firms in the regulated sector - for example factory textile employment, where wages and employment levels were generally much higher than the norm. Trade directories are another useful source but suffer from the fact that they were published irregularly, and record not employment but the names of business proprietorships. Household budgets have recently been used for research on women's work. They have the advantage that they generally record all incomes, including poor relief and self-provisioning, allowing one to assess the contribution of women and juveniles to the family economy. Their disadvantage is that they have patchy survival over time and region, and they have varying levels of detail, accuracy and comparability because they were compiled for differing purposes.

14. What does this passage mainly discuss?
 - A. Early movement of British women workers during Victorian era
 - B. Reasons why British women workers become massively common during Victorian era
 - C. History of British women workers during Victorian era
 - D. Issue about the history record of British women workers during Victorian era
 - E. Kind of documents that can be used as reliable sources to examine about British women workers

 - B. Sometimes women work in a field of occupation which unable to be recorded
 - C. Women's job are seen to be insignificant to be recorded
 - D. Several women choose to keep the job in private and rather not declare it
 - E. The inconsistency and contradictory instructions in the process of recording
16. Based on this text, it can be inferred that women's and men's job are distinguished in a way that those are...

 - B. Men's jobs can easily be declared while women's job mostly being kept in secret
 - C. Men's jobs are easily recorded for they barely work on something illegal

Cara kedua :

Apabila pilihan yang disajikan sulit dan rasanya sama semua, bacalah soal dengan perlahan "Hammered" dalam soal bukan berarti dipalu, tetapi kalian harus melihat keseluruhan kalimat : "That would be China's weakest growth rate in four decades, excluding 2020 when the global economy was hammered by the emergence of the coronavirus" Dari kalimat kita tahu bahwa ekonomi dari China terkena dampaknya/terkena hantaman akibat dari Corona Virus, sekarang kita melihat pilihan yang tersedia. Pada pilihan, terdapat saved, kita tau kata dasar save bisa berarti selamat atau menyimpan tergantung dengan konteks bacaan, dalam pilihan, saved yang dimaksud adalah diselamatkan. Apabila kita mengganti kalimat terkena dampaknya menjadi diselamatkan, tentu tidak cocok dengan pernyataan yang kita punya atau bertentangan. Oleh karena itu, pilihan D tepat.

Dalam paragraf ketiga dijelaskan bahwa Negara China masih mengikuti strategi yang memberlakukan pembatasan perjalanan yang ketat, pengujian PCR massal, dan karantina wajib. Maka dari itu, jawaban yang lebih tepat adalah menyajikan data terkait apa yang dilakukan pemerintah China atau contoh terhadap kebijakan tersebut sehingga jawaban

"Media pemerintah memperingatkan kebijakan tersebut tidak boleh dilonggarkan juga pembatasan penguncian di Shanghai telah kembali" (Pilihan A tepat)

Pilihan B, "Menjelaskan tentang China yang sedang berjuang melawan krisis yang belum pernah terjadi sebelumnya di sektor real estatnya" akan benar apabila paragraf 3 sudah menyajikan data terkait contoh kebijakan China yang terjadi. Akan tetapi, karena belum tersajinya data, maka pilihan B tidak tepat.

Pilihan C, "Menyediakan data tentang penjualan properti sekarang jatuh di seluruh negeri, meninggalkan banyak pengembang berjuang" tidak tepat karena paragraf tiga sedang menjelaskan mengenai kebijakan, bukan membahas faktor yang kedua, terkait krisis real estate.

Pilihan D, "Pihak berwenang China meluncurkan tindakan keras terhadap utang yang berlebihan pada tahun 2020" tidak tepat karena paragraf tiga tidak ada yang menjelaskan mengenai utang.

Gagasan utama biasanya dimuat baik secara tersurat maupun tersirat di paragraf pertama bacaan. Paragraf pertama menjelaskan tentang kondisi rumah tangga di Inggris pada era Victoria. Diceritakan bahwa jumlah keluarga meningkat dengan tumbuhnya angka kelahiran serta harapan hidup. Paragraf selanjutnya menjelaskan tentang bagaimana hal tersebut serta berbagai alasan lain mendorong perempuan mulai bekerja. Dari sini, kita bisa melihat bahwa bacaan ini membahas tentang pergerakan awal bagaimana perempuan Inggris akhirnya bekerja di luar rumah pada era Victoria. Jadi jawaban yang benar adalah c.

Pembahasan:

JAWABAN : C

Semua pilihan jawaban kecuali c menyampaikan fakta yang sesuai dan bisa diimplikasikan dari paragraf pertama. Diceritakan bahwa jumlah keluarga meningkat dengan tumbuhnya angka kelahiran serta harapan hidup. Kemudian terdapat juga pernyataan yang sesuai dengan fakta yang disampaikan di paragraf pertama yaitu bahwa seringkali bentuk keluarga di Inggris terhitung kompleks. Pilihan jawaban c memuat pernyataan tentang bagaimana pekerja perempuan menjadi sebuah hal biasa, sementara pembahasan ini terdapat pada paragraf selanjutnya. Jadi jawaban yang benar adalah c.

12.

Pembahasan:

JAWABAN : D

Nomor ini menanyakan alasan utama mengapa perempuan mulai bekerja pada saat itu. Pembahasan terkait hal ini bisa ditemukan pada paragraf kedua. Setelah penjelasan tentang besarnya keluarga Inggris, paragraf kedua menambahkan informasi yang berbunyi "Most households necessarily drew income from a number of sources". Kalimat tersebut artinya, kebanyakan rumah tangga menarik pemasukan dari beberapa sumber. Dari sini, kita bisa melihat bahwa kemungkinan alasan mengapa perempuan mulai bekerja pada saat itu adalah adanya kebutuhan pemasukan tambahan. Jadi jawaban yang tepat adalah d.

Pembahasan:

JAWABAN : E

Pertanyaan ini menanyakan manakah yang bukan menjadi alasan bagaimana pekerja perempuan meluas dan meningkat.

- Dalam hal ini, "The opportunities created and given by the urbanization" yang kesempatan yang datang dari proses urbanisasi adalah salah satu alasan yang tepat. Penjelasan bisa ditemukan di paragraf ketiga.
- Pilihan, "The increasing demand of women workers during Victorian era" yang meningkatnya permintaan terhadap pekerja perempuan juga salah satu alasan yang tepat. Penjelasan bisa ditemukan di paragraf ketiga.
- Pilihan, "The invention of technologies and new working pattern" yang berarti perkembangan teknologi dan pekerjaan berpola baru juga merupakan alasan yang tepat. Penjelasan bisa ditemukan di paragraf ketiga.
- Pilihan, "The dependency of several households towards women income" yang berarti ketergantungan beberapa rumah tangga terhadap pemasukan dari perempuan juga adalah alasan yang tepat. Penjelasan bisa ditemukan di paragraf ketiga.
- Pilihan, "The choice of hiring women-workers since they don't mind to be paid less than men" yang berarti pilihan untuk mempekerjakan pekerja perempuan sebab mereka tidak keberatan dibayar lebih rendah dari lelaki. Terkait bayaran perempuan yang lebih rendah memang dijelaskan dalam teks, namun tidak ada penjelasan tentang bagaimana pendapat perempuan tentang hal tersebut. Pernyataan "tidak keberatan" membuat pilihan ini kurang akurat.

Pertanyaan ini menanyakan manakah dari jawaban ini yang bukan menjadi alasan mengapa kita kesulitan menemukan sumber terpercaya terkait perempuan pekerja.

- Dalam hal ini, "Census enumerators often make records for only men" yang berarti sensus kadang hanya mencatat untuk lelaki adalah salah satu alasan yang kurang tepat. Penjelasan bisa ditemukan di paragraf pertama. Di sana disebutkan bahwa perempuan juga dicatat, meski terkadang kurang akurat.
- Pilihan, "Sometimes women work in a field of occupation which unable to be recorded" yang berarti terkadang perempuan bekerja di bidang yang tidak memungkinkan untuk dicatat adalah salah satu alasan yang tepat. Penjelasan bisa ditemukan di paragraf pertama dan kedua.
- Pilihan, "Women's job are seen to be insignificant to be recorded" yang berarti pekerjaan perempuan dianggap kurang signifikan untuk dicatat juga merupakan alasan yang tepat. Penjelasan bisa ditemukan di paragraf pertama.
- Pilihan, "Several women choose to keep the job in private and rather not declare it" yang berarti beberapa perempuan memilih untuk merahasiakan pekerjaan mereka juga adalah alasan yang tepat. Penjelasan bisa ditemukan di paragraf kedua.

JAWABAN : B

Kalimat yang digaris bawah di paragraf 1 mengandung informasi bahwa aksi yang ada dipengaruhi oleh naiknya biaya hidup, di mana tagihan listrik melonjak akibat pemotongan pasokan gas alam Rusia (This industrial action was triggered by the rising living costs in France, where electricity bills are surging as a result of a cut in Russian natural gas supplies).

Pilihan yang memiliki frasa yang sama dengan informasi tersebut adalah pilihan B. The cuts in the supply of Russian natural gas that have triggered soaring electricity bills in France and have raised the cost of living led to the action.

Pilihan D kurang tepat karena menghilangkan informasi tentang pemotongan pasokan gas alam Rusia. Pilihan A tidak tepat karena aksi tersebut tidak dipicu oleh melonjaknya pemasokan gas alam Rusia. Pilihan C tidak tepat karena naiknya biaya hidup di Perancis tidak mengakibatkan pemotongan gas alam Rusia, namun justru sebaliknya. Pilihan E tidak tepat karena aksi yang ada tidak menyebabkan adanya pemotongan pasokan gas alam Rusia, naiknya tagihan listrik, dan naiknya biaya hidup.

JAWABAN : A

Pada paragraph ketiga kalimat pertama, Menteri keuangan berkata bahwa pemogokan tidak dapat diterima dan tidak sah karena kesepakatan upah telah bersepakat dengan mayoritas pekerja (The strikes were unacceptable and illegitimate, because wage agreements had been met with the majority of workers). Selanjutnya pada kalimat kedua paragraf ketiga, menteri keuangan tersebut juga menambahkan bahwa waktu negosiasi telah bertalu.

Maka, dapat disimpulkan bahwa menteri keuangan menentang aksi mogok kerja karena telah melewati batas waktu dan juga telah menemukan kesepakatan dengan mayoritas buruh. Sehingga, pilihan A adalah yang paling tepat.

Pilihan B tidak tepat karena menteri keuangan tidak melakukan aksi mogok kerja. Pilihan C tidak tepat karena pada paragraf ketiga tidak dijelaskan bahwa menteri keuangan kehabisan waktu. Pilihan D kurang tepat karena tidak semua pekerja mencapai kesepakatan dengan kebijakan upah. Pilihan E tidak tepat karena pemicu aksi pemogokan kerja bukanlah karena kehabisan waktu untuk bernegosiasi.

Pembahasan:

JAWABAN : E

Soal tersebut menanyakan tentang ringkasan. Ringkasan mengandung informasi dari paragraf 1 hingga 3 namun ditulis dalam kalimat yang lebih ringkas.

Paragraf 1 membahas tentang aksi pemogokan yang melumpuhkan di kilang-kilang gas yang menyebabkan pompa bahan bakar menjadi kering (kalimat pertama).

Paragraf 2 membahas tentang adanya kesepakatan kenaikan upah sebesar 7%, namun CGT menuntut kenaikan sebesar 10%.

Paragraf 3 membahas tentang Menteri keuangan yang menentang aksi pemogokan kerja tersebut karena telah bersepakat dengan mayoritas pekerja dan telah melewati batas waktu.

Maka, ringkasan yang tepat adalah pada pilihan E karena mengandung informasi dari paragraf 1 hingga 3.

Pilihan A tidak tepat karena isu kenaikan upah bukan di ranah pejabat pemerintahan (wage increases among government officials). Pilihan B dan C tidak tepat karena presentase kenaikan upah yang ditentang tidak tepat.

Pilihan D tidak tepat karena terdapat informasi yang salah yaitu para pejabat pemerintahan melakukan aksi mogok kerja (government officials on strike).
